WAR RUMORS HALT STOCKS

Relations Between U. S. and Austria Used to Bear

BUT MARKET IS STEADY

Fairly Strong Undertone Maintained
Throughout Despite Professional Offerings.

New York, Dec. 9.—Apprehension over possible strained relations between the United States and Austria, together with weakness of Anglo-French bonds, was used by professionals as an excuse to attack stock prices today. Notwithstanding the offerings by professionals, the market exhibited a fairly strong undertone. Followers of the tape, however, declare that the market has gone "steady" in many spots and that the public refuses to participate. Opening prices were irregular, steel common being heavy and showing overnight loss of half a point. The general list showed improvement after the opening of the market when steel rallied to yesterday's final price. The recovery was subsequently lost on account of the heaviness of the Anglo-French bonds.

Gold stocks were heavy, but Ontario silver was extremely active and higher. War stocks were higher in the early trading today, but sold off with the general list. Dealings in these shares are now almost entirely professional, the public only participating to the extent of other tight on their shares purchased at much higher prices, according to commission house brokers.

A speculator of many years' experience declares that the short position is the only one of which there is any reasonable assurance of success. As the public does not trade on the short side, he contends that no increase in the daily turnover need be expected until conditions change. This speculator finds himself in the position of being a "bull" in the market, every one of which he has been trying in vain to get out of at a slight profit.
